
Los Angeles Federal Charges Criminal Defense Lawyer | Felony Convictions Attorney | Law Firm

A person may be charged for a crime in state court or sometimes in federal court. While most criminal cases fall under state jurisdiction, there are plenty that are brought to the federal court houses. While there are plenty of differences in the two court systems, federal crimes usually involve the same charges as state crimes. The main differences are that federal trials occur in a different court system with different rules, and, most importantly, that the federal government has nearly unlimited resources at its disposal. If you have been charged or are under investigation by the federal government, you should only trust a lawyer with federal court experience. Attorney Ramiro J. Lluís has spent over 30 years defending federal criminal cases as a federal criminal defense lawyer in Los Angeles. Even if you are only under investigation for a federal crime, you need to have an experienced federal criminal defense lawyer as soon as possible. Los Angeles Criminal Defense Attorney, Ramiro J. Lluís can often negotiate with authorities, including on some occasions to drop their investigation or give you lesser punishment.
